Description

Large and spectacular Louis XV style wrought iron console table with projecting top, gilded and patinated, dating from the mid-19th century. Its openwork frieze is adorned with volutes, palmettes, and flowers. It rests on four openwork double-scroll feet, decorated with acanthus leaves and flowers, joined by two cartouches, and in its center, a large, richly ornamented finial on the front. The marble top has a molded border and is veined in shades of pink and light mauve. A very fine and elaborate piece of 19th-century French craftsmanship.
