imperial crown. The glasses have an elegant conical shape resting on a double-bulged stem and a circular foot, characteristic of high-quality European decorative glassware from the early 20th century. The set is distinguished by the uniformity of its designs and the coherence of the service, bringing together matching water glasses, champagne glasses, and vodka glasses. This type of service, inspired by Russian imperial designs, was intended for a clientele sensitive to historical iconography and refined tableware. The quality of the crystal, the regularity of the engraving, and the symbolic power of the decoration give this set a remarkable visual presence. A beautiful decorative and collectible set, ideal for a formal table, a display case, or a cabinet of curiosities.

Condition : Very good overall condition. Two water glasses have slight chips at the rim, discreet and easily corrected by polishing, without affecting the strength or legibility of the decoration. One vodka glass has a slight chip at the rim. All other glasses are in excellent condition.
