Description

A rare French Art Nouveau ceramic piece, circa 1900, 56 cm high, forming an elegant composition with undulating lines that blends stylized vegetal decoration with an integrated female figure. The basin, rendered with a fluid, organic quality, contrasts subtly with the softer, more sculptural modeling of the figure, demonstrating the collaborative workshop approach characteristic of French ceramics at the turn of the century. The polychrome glazes in pastel shades of seafoam green, yellow, and mauve highlight the piece's rich texture and reinforce its naturalistic aesthetic.
