Description

We present this antique Italian sideboard, crafted in the mid-19th century from walnut veneer. This tall sideboard is composed of two distinct parts, allowing for easy movement. The upper section features glass doors, allowing you to display your finest dishes for your guests to admire. Inside, there are two useful shelves. Please note the original antique glass panels. The lower section features wooden doors and can be used to store tableware or items you prefer not to expose to guests. There are also two practical drawers, providing additional storage space for smaller items such as cutlery. Aesthetically, this sideboard has a very simple, unadorned look, giving it a look that fits perfectly in classic settings. However, don't underestimate the potential for this sideboard in a modern setting, where it can
