Description

A masterpiece of satire and craftsmanship This extraordinary bronze sculpture represents an unmissable opportunity for the most refined collectors. The work depicts a singular subject, namely a priest caught in the act of strangling a turkey. Furthermore, the casting stands out for an execution quality that only the great masters of the twentieth century could offer. Signed Vittorio Saloni, the piece exudes a magnetic charm thanks to its rare iconography. Indeed, the dynamism of the scene immediately captures the viewer's gaze.Technical details and rare iconography The work measures 26x24xh45cm and is in excellent overall condition. The beautiful dark patina enhances every minute detail of the chiseling. However, the most fascinating aspect is certainly the link with the anticlerical satire typical of the
