Description

Alessandro LA VOLPE (c. 1820-1887) Large landscape, animated scene against a backdrop of ancient ruins Oil on canvas Signed lower left and dated 1859 This 1859 work by Alessandro La Volpe crystallizes the essence of the Staggia School, marking a definitive departure from aseptic academic conventions in favor of a lyrical and vibrant realism. The artist does not simply portray the landscape, but dissects its light, immersing the scene in an atmosphere where the rigor of the Markò masters dissolves into a freer and more immediate approach. It is an execution that exudes the modernity of plein air: the stark contrast between the rugged grandeur of the cliff and the dense gloom of the undergrowth reveals a precise desire to capture the atmospheric truth and vital pulse of Tuscan nature. La Volpe abandons the superfluous decorative to embrace a painting of sentiment and macchia, transforming the view into a powerful visual experience that boldly and vigorously anticipates the impending Macchiaioli revolution.82 x 108 cm
