Description

An 18th-century wooden sculpture gilded with gold leaf, depicting the Virgin and Child, a devotional subject widely ?? ???????????ed in Italy during the Baroque and late Baroque periods.

The figure of the Virgin is shown standing, with a composed and solemn attitude. Her face is oval, with calm and regular features, and her gaze is slightly lowered, conveying a gentle yet contemplative expression. The drapery is one of the most interesting elements: the folds are broad, soft, and clearly articulated.

The Christ Child, supported on the Virgin's left arm, is depicted in a natural and lively pose. The body is modeled with a certain attention to anatomy, and the gesture of the arm suggests an affectionate interaction with the Virgin, reinforcing the human and familial tone of the
