Description

Pair of Antique French Crystal Chandeliers with Twelve Lights, rare pair of elegant crystal living room chandeliers in perfect condition, ready to hang. These two 20th-century French chandeliers feature a gilded brass cage structure, composed of six beaded uprights, each covered with a double row of crystal beads that lend brightness and a refined, sophisticated look. Each chandelier has twelve curved arms that enclose a central faceted crystal pinnacle, creating an additional play of light and reflections. The arms are embellished with a multitude of crystal pendants in the shape of shaped spears that enhance the refraction effect and help to create a magical and luminous atmosphere. This pair of vintage crystal chandeliers is of French origin and represents an example of versatile classic design suitable for charming environments, both contemporary and antique. They have been completely restored and rewired, and now work perfectly with twelve E14 bulbs. They date back to around 1950. The measurements given refer only to the structure of the chandeliers; the cup from which they hang from the ceiling measures an additional 20 cm. The price does not include packaging in wooden crates and transport.
