Description

An important covered terrine in solid silver, accompanied by its stand, executed in the elegant and refined style of the Regency period. Its balanced and architectural rectangular shape with canted corners gives it a strong presence and a noble line. The finely chased decoration on a matte background reveals very high-quality silversmithing: scrolls and cartouches in the style of "BERAIN" unfold with elegance, while the handles sculpted with foliate mascarons add relief and character to the whole. The domed lid, topped with a gadrooned handle, harmoniously completes the composition. The matching stand, generously proportioned, rests on four scrolled feet adorned with finials. It echoes the same scalloped lines and delicate moldings, offering perfect visual unity and a spectacular table
