Description

Open Shahsavan Gorjin (pack bag), Iran, wool, cotton warp, circa 1950. Good condition. Signs of wear. Two techniques were used for this Shahsavan: soumak* in the center (originally the front of the bag) and kilim bands (originally the back of the bag). On the soumak section, light borders composed of the 'S' motif frame a border featuring zoomorphic spider motifs, which are also found in the center. Beautiful harmony of colors in both the soumak and the kilim (abrached 'plum' tones).*Soumak: a wrapped weaving technique (embroidery), called suzan in Iran, suzani meaning 'embroidered with a needle'. The territory of the Shahsavans is located south and west of the Caspian Sea, in Iranian Azerbaijan. Composed of Kurdish, Persian, Turkish, Tajik, and Caucasian ethnic groups, the Shahsavan
