Description

This table lamp is distinguished by its strong sculptural presence and remarkable craftsmanship in metal and glass. The base, entirely made of wrought iron, presents a harmonious composition of slender lines and spiraling scrolls, evoking both Art Nouveau aesthetics and the spirit of early 20th-century decorative arts. The hand-hammered uprights converge on a circular base adorned with concentric spirals, lending the piece great stability and a highly expressive visual signature. The central stem is embellished with suspended foliate motifs, bringing lightness and movement to the dark metal structure with its deep brown patina. The shade, made of reddish-orange tinted glass with a marbled and nuanced appearance, diffuses a warm and enveloping light. The hue is reminiscent of lava
