Description

Pair of Legras Art Nouveau vases in emerald glass with hand-painted carnation decoration. The beauty of Art Nouveau captured in glass. Created during the Art Nouveau period (1890-1910), this pair of vases, blown by the Legras glass workshops, evokes the style of this movement, where nature is the central theme, and the decoration is free and organic, like plants. The decoration is hand-painted. Floral, it symbolizes blooming pink carnations, a popular spring flower in French gardens, a symbol of maternal and familial love. This vase is an eternal symbol of spring, captured for eternity in this emerald-hued blown glass, a product of French craftsmanship from the early 20th century. In excellent overall condition, it awaits its place in a refined interior, one that appreciates nature and Art Nouveau. Fast
