Description

Art Deco - Art Deco Period, Solid Silver Necklace, Minerva Head Hallmark. A rare Art Deco solid silver necklace, remarkable for its presence and elegance, designed as a true statement piece for women. This necklace showcases exceptionally high-quality craftsmanship, evident in the powerful architecture of its links, both graphic and perfectly balanced. The volumes are controlled, the lines clean, with a subtle interplay of shapes that creates a play of relief and light emblematic of the Art Deco aesthetic. The chain links are particularly well-crafted: each element fits together with precision, ensuring both excellent flexibility when worn and impeccable structural strength. The whole forms a dense, cohesive, and harmonious necklace, designed to naturally embrace the neck. The silver is solid, weightless, inspected, and hallmarked with the Minerva head - a helmeted woman. This is the only hallmark visible on the piece. No maker's mark is present, which is common for this type of high-quality Art Deco piece. The natural patina highlights the metal's texture and showcases the handcrafted work, without excess or artifice. Weighing in at a substantial 107 grams, this necklace asserts its status as a statement piece, rare on the market. A strong, elegant, and timeless piece, intended for a woman who appreciates structured, assertive, and refined jewelry.
