styles, ranging from realism to abstract landscape painting and simplified forms, culminating in an explosion of color. In 1958, he left India for Europe, traveling to the Netherlands, England, and Belgium. When he returned a few years later, his style had completely changed. He exhibited at Jehangir Art Gallery in 1962 and at the Taj Art Gallery in 1970. In July 1971, 40 of his works were exhibited at India House in London. He died on January 5, 1986. His works have notably been presented at The Rajya Sabha in New Delhi, the Tata Institute of Fundamental Research and the CSMVS Museum in Bombay.
