Description

Small Louis XIV Period Oak Side Table, 17th Century. This charming small side table, crafted from solid oak with moldings, dates from the Louis XIV period and rests on turned legs. It features a small side drawer adorned with a trefoil-shaped wrought iron keyhole escutcheon and a rectangular wooden top. The table rests on four turned baluster legs joined by an H-shaped stretcher. It is branded with the initials F and HCPM, likely a workshop or ownership mark. It offers good stability and a beautiful patina. This finely crafted piece of furniture boasts clean lines. Combining practicality with its small storage drawer and small top, this table can serve as a side table, occasional table, or writing table. With its convenient dimensions, this 17th-century piece is easy to place and move. Uncommon and
