Description

Pair of vintage ceramic lamps from the 1960s/70s. A very interesting pair depicting two young women holding an amphora. These sculptures were created by Juan Huerta, a sculptor for the Lladrò factory, and have a very pleasing and original design. Signed under the base. Note a slight difference in tone between the two lamps due to their handcrafted nature. A very rare pair on the market, in excellent structural and working condition with their pull-chain switches. Lampshades in excellent condition. A very typical 1960s pair, perfect for a stylish interior to create a symmetrical look. Shipping available within France and worldwide via secure, insured package with order tracking. Invoice and certificate provided.
