Description

Faceted Murano glass wall sconces (elongated polyhedral shape), typical of Poliarte. Thick, translucent glass in a chartreuse/light green tint. The elements are stacked and fixed to a wall structure, with the bulb concealed behind. Three E14 bulbs. The light is diffused and refracted by the facets, creating a highly sculptural effect. An iconic Murano style from the 1960s-1970s, attributed to the Poliarte glassworks. This type of sconces was widely used in modernist interiors and luxury hotels at the time. Heavy, well-cut glass. Sharp edges, not crude molding. Color throughout (not just a surface tint). Modular assembly typical of Murano (rather than industrial production).
