Description

Elegant still life painting depicting a group of lemons arranged on a dark background, executed in oil on a wooden panel. The composition is striking for its strong contrast between the vivid yellow tones of the fruit and the deep black background, further enhanced by the black frame which perfectly complements the work. The artist demonstrates great technical skill in the rendering of textures, light, and reflections, giving the lemons a remarkable sense of volume and realism. The restrained composition and careful use of light place the focus entirely on the subject, in the tradition of classical figurative still life painting. This work was created by Carlos Laharrague Rodríguez-Bauza (1936-2018), a Spanish painter known for his refined still lifes and figurative compositions, often inspired by
