Description

Oil on canvas. In this pictorial impression of dawn, dating from around 1880, all narrative fades with exquisite beauty before the landscape itself. The work is an act of faith in the moment, the particular, where the nascent light pierces the sea mist. The humble task of the fisherman hauling his nets ashore is not an anecdote, but a poetic anchor to the immensity. The air, fresh and salty, carries the ceaseless murmur of the reeds, stirred by the morning breeze into a gentle melody. This conjunction of the ephemeral, the human, and the atmosphere rises and transforms into a phenomenon as sublime and overwhelming as the golden promise of dawn itself, whose free and vibrant brushstrokes manage to capture the soul at the threshold of day. Dimensions of the image without frame: 75 x 40 cm / 95 x 60 cm
