Description

Important Decorative Rooster in Polychrome Ceramic - 20th Century. This beautiful and expressive sculpture of a rooster, crafted from polychrome ceramic, dates from the 20th century. The piece is distinguished by its strong decorative presence and naturalistic treatment. The rooster is depicted in a proud and dynamic pose, with its neck raised and beak slightly open, suggesting crowing. The modeling is particularly refined, especially in the rendering of the richly textured plumage. The vibrant and contrasting polychromy combines deep reds, golden yellows, nuanced whites, and blacks enhanced with touches of green and purple, lending considerable character to the whole. The sculpture rests on an integrated circular base. The overall condition is good, with some wear and minor surface imperfections.
