Description

Giuseppe Gheduzzi, "Orientalist Scene," oil on panel, signed, early 1900s. The work depicts a scene of daily life set in a historic village, characterized by stone architecture and an arched passageway that dominates the composition. Signed lower right. The scene is pervaded by a soft, diffused light that highlights the materiality of the surfaces. The brushwork is loose but controlled, typical of genre painting between the late 19th and early 20th centuries, a field in which Gheduzzi stands out for his compositional sensitivity and attention to everyday life. On the back is a label from the Garabello Art Gallery, attesting to the historical provenance of the work. Dimensions: Panel 35 × 25 cm. Frame 50 × 40 cm.
