Description

This exceptional piece, signed by the artist E. Rousseau, embodies all the grace and audacity of Art Nouveau. It depicts a nude woman, captured in a pose that is both natural and theatrical, her arm raised with an elegance that captivates the eye. A delicately sculpted piece of drapery envelops her arm before falling fluidly over her lower body, preserving a touch of modesty while highlighting the beauty of her curves. The artist has captured the spirit of the era, where nature and femininity intertwine in perfect harmony. The woman, seated on a fragment of a capital, seems to emerge from an ancient dream, blending modernity and tradition. This architectural detail adds a symbolic dimension to the work, evoking both solidity and fragility, permanence and transience. The sculpture, 33 cm high, rests on a round marble base, which enhances its majestic presence. The golden patina, subtly worn by time, lends the piece an authentic charm, a testament to a history spanning decades. These discreet and insignificant traces of wear only add to its unique character, reminding us that each antique piece carries within it the memory of its era. Dating from the late 19th or early 20th century, this work is a magnificent example of the craftsmanship of Art Nouveau artisans. E. Rousseau, through his talent, breathed life into this bronze, transforming a simple object into a true work of art, where every detail counts. From the delicate features of the face and the tension of the muscles to the fluidity of the drapery, everything contributes to creating a visual harmony that captivates all who see it. This sculpture will appeal to discerning art lovers seeking pieces imbued with history and emotion. It will find its place naturally in a decorative art collection or as a centerpiece in an elegant and refined interior. Its imposing yet discreet size allows for easy integration into various spaces, while undeniably attracting attention. Treat yourself to a piece of history, a touch of the exceptional, and let this gilded bronze woman illuminate your everyday life with her timeless presence. A rare piece where art and craftsmanship meet to create a work that transcends eras. You can follow me on Instagram by following this link:
