It rests on three zoomorphic feet. Circular base in finely knurled bronze. Finely chiseled garland of flowers on the top. Column shaft in cut crystal with cross-hatched flowerbeds, topped with an antique-style bust of a woman. Circular mirror entirely encircled by knurled bronze. This type of production is similar to many crystal objects made in the factories of Vonêche, Baccarat, Le Creusot, and Montcenis and sold in Parisian boutiques between 1810 and 1830. This fashion reached its peak in 1819 with the presentation by Veuve Desarnaud at the Exhibition of French Industrial Products of an
