Description

Portrait of a Young Officer - Pastel - Late 18th Century French School, circa 1775-1785 Pastel on paper Antique frame Dimensions with frame 76 x 60 cm A charming pastel portrait of a young officer, shown half-length. His gaze is direct, his face finely modeled, with an expression that is both gentle and confident, typical of portraits of young men from the late 18th century. The sitter wears a light blue coat with a black collar, enhanced by a gold epaulette that signifies his officer status. Although the uniform is not secondary, the artist focuses primarily on the freshness of the face, the quality of the drawing, and the delicate nuances of the pastel. The pastel technique, highly valued at this time for private portraits, allows for a vibrant rendering of skin tones and gives the whole an immediate and
