Description

Oil on canvas. Original canvas. Signed and dated 1920. Juan García Calvo (1897-1966) embodies the quintessence of an elegant regionalism which, setting itself apart from the picturesque and caricatured folklore of the Spanish Levant, distilled the light and identity of the region through a refined and academic technique. His scenes, imbued with an almost classical serenity, magnify daily life and the Murcian landscape with a vibrant and masterful palette, where the balance of the composition and the nobility of the figures reveal a profound respect for the Hispanic pictorial tradition. In his work, the local is elevated to the universal, crystallizing a typically Spanish vision that combines the warmth of the place with an aesthetic distinction, making him an essential chronicler of the sober and luminous
