Description

This composition is based on one of the famous equestrian portraits of the 17th-century Spanish school, attributed to Diego Velázquez: the equestrian portrait of Prince Baltasar Carlos. It depicts a young prince mounted on a rearing horse, holding a baton of command. The child, richly dressed in an embroidered ceremonial costume and wearing a wide-brimmed dark hat, embodies the aristocratic and military ideal characteristic of Spanish royal iconography. Oil on canvas, 19th century. Shipping within France: EUR50. Shipping within Europe: EUR80. For shipping to any other destination, please request a quote.
