Description

Scandinavian Armchair in Solid Wood and Rope - 1950s. This elegant Scandinavian-inspired armchair, dating from the 1950s, combines clean lines with authentic materials. The frame is made of solid wood with balanced, architectural lines, wide, flat armrests, and straight legs typical of post-war Nordic modernism. The seat and back are upholstered in braided rope, offering comfort, visual lightness, and a minimalist aesthetic. This ropework is reminiscent of Danish designs of the period, in the spirit of creations by Kaare Klint or Børge Mogensen. The design prioritizes functionality and the purity of form, characteristic of Scandinavian furniture from the 1940s to 1960s. A striking decorative piece, ideal for a contemporary, wabi-sabi, minimalist, or vintage interior. Specifications: Origin: Scandinavia
