Description

Edmond Heuzé (1883-1967) was a 20th-century French painter, draughtsman, engraver, and illustrator, a member of the Académie des Beaux-Arts, and renowned for his portraits, circus scenes, and human figures. A self-taught artist influenced by the Parisian art scene and a friend of figures such as Suzanne Valadon and Maurice Utrillo, he exhibited in France and abroad. His works--watercolors, drawings, and engravings--are held in private collections and are regularly sought after on the art market. This work is framed with a giltwood frame.
