Description

A painter signed Walpenko, active around 1949, belonging to an independent figurative style of the post-war period. The work depicts players gathered on the deck of a boat, a scene of everyday life rendered with spontaneity. The brushstrokes are rapid, instinctive, and expressive, emphasizing movement and atmosphere. An original painting, signed and dated, in a free and personal style. The canvas, originally unstretched, has recently been mounted on a keyed stretcher; it is in good overall condition and has not undergone any restoration, apart from this re-stretching.
