Description

Pair of Art Deco swan bookends in black spelter on beige marble, early 20th century. A pivotal period in design, Art Deco (1910-1939) was a time when geometry reigned supreme and nature its kingdom. The shape of these swans is endemic to this style; this blend of slightly organic geometric forms set on a pinkish-beige marble base is chic. This sophisticated set is imbued with symbolism close to love, the swan representing purity and fidelity in love. Moreover, when placed facing each other, their necks form a heart. Perfect for holding your books on your bookshelf, or for symbolizing your love (for your partner or for reading), don't hesitate to adopt this Art Deco beauty!
