Description

Venetian wall mirror dating from the mid-20th century, featuring at its centre an oval mirror, surrounded by a second mirror engraved with floral motifs. The whole composition is enclosed within a typical Venetian frame, formed by scrolls, flowers and leaves in blown glass, delicately shaped, lightly tinted, and enhanced with subtle gold inclusions.

Each element is mounted -- following traditional techniques -- with small glass-headed pins onto a wooden base, a multilayer plywood panel.

The structure of the backing allows this mirror to be attributed to the 1960s, a period in which Venetian craftsmanship renewed its forms while preserving its centuries-old heritage.
