Description

This elegant Louis XV Neapolitan chest of drawers, crafted in the mid-18th century, is made of fine violet and rosewood, finely inlaid with refined and harmonious taste. The wavy lines, characteristic of both the front and sides, fully express the rocaille style of the period. The piece features two large drawers with exquisitely crafted gilded bronze handles and inserts, further enhancing the structure. The original Siena yellow marble top, with its warm natural grain, perfectly shaped to follow the sinuous movement of the chest, completes the composition. An example of fine 18th-century Neapolitan cabinetmaking, combining aesthetic refinement and the craftsmanship of the time. Period: Mid-18th century; Provenance: Naples; Dimensions: Height 94 cm; Width 145
