Description

A Breath of Nature from the Early 20th Century: This mirror is a true testament to the Art Nouveau era, when art drew its inspiration from the free lines of nature. The floral scrolls, finely carved in wood, still seem to be in motion, as if suspended between architecture and decorative poetry. Its patinated gilding diffuses a soft, warm, almost living light. A Streamlined Silhouette Revealing Its Modernity: The original pediment was largely removed some time ago. Far from diminishing the piece, this transformation gives it a new lease on life. The eye is drawn to the nobility of the frame and the delicacy of its floral decoration. This clean line facilitates its integration into contemporary interiors while preserving the soul and history of the piece. This evolution gives it a unique, almost timeless identity. Preserved
