Description

Large ginger pot or wedding jar in Chinese porcelain from the early 20th century. A tradition of marriage, eternal love in the robustness of porcelain: this is what this large ginger pot or wedding jar in Chinese porcelain symbolizes. Created at the beginning of the 20th century, this jar is inspired by ginger jars (shuangxi) called 'Double Happiness' from the Imperial era of the Qing. It is the symbol of marriage in China. Today its highly decorative aspect is appreciated by collectors and lovers of Chinese porcelain. Its floral decoration called "mille-fleurs" symbolizes longevity and the blossoming of prosperity in a couple's love. Large in size, and in excellent condition, this vase will not fail to add cachet within your interior decoration, in the middle of a dresser or table, it
