Description

This strikingly beautiful antique crucifix is a remarkable piece dating from the 19th century. Its Italian, likely Neapolitan, origin is evident in its Baroque style and the meticulous craftsmanship of the solid silver that adorns it. Christ, sculpted with poignant expressiveness, is surrounded by exquisitely delicate details: the ends of the cross's arms are decorated with motifs and small silver cherubs, adding a celestial dimension to the whole. The wood, darkened by time, offers a striking contrast to the brilliance of the silver, creating a harmony between simplicity and opulence. This crucifix is protected by a period glass dome, itself mounted on a blackened wooden base, also from the 19th century. Together, they form an elegant display case that showcases the piece while protecting it from external damage. It is important to emphasize the rarity of such an object on the market. Crucifixes of this quality, combining antique wood and solid silver, are rare, especially when accompanied by their protective globe. One small detail to note: a tiny chip on a bone next to the skull, but this in no way detracts from the beauty or historical value of the object. Furthermore, the crucifix is complete and in excellent condition, which is remarkable for a piece of this age. Its dimensions are impressive: the crucifix itself is 51 cm high, while the entire piece, including the globe, reaches 63 cm. These proportions make it an ideal collector's item for display on a desk, a bookshelf, or as a centerpiece in a room dedicated to sacred art. This crucifix is much more than a religious object: it is a work of art in its own right, a testament to the devotion and craftsmanship of 19th-century Italian artisans. It will appeal to lovers of sacred art, collectors of antiques, and those passionate about history and heritage.
