which rise three lion's hocks. These, ending in clawed feet, are enhanced by rich, enveloping acanthus leaves. The superbly crafted shaft adopts a baluster shape, its domed base adorned with a rich palmette decoration. The delicately fluted body of the column flares out at the top to allow large, drooping laurel leaves to flourish. The summit is crowned by a circular candle holder with a profusion of leaf and rosette decoration.

The whole is completed by a removable bobèche with a basin, whose fluted decoration echoes the work of the shaft. Provenance: Private Collection.
