Description

An elegant pair of finely chased bronze candlesticks in the Louis XV style, resting on a shaped base decorated with gadroons and stylized leaves. The baluster stem, punctuated by moldings and fluting, supports an openwork candle holder with a flowing design, typical of the Rococo style. These candlesticks date from the mid- to late-19th century and have been carefully regilded, now exhibiting a beautiful, even shine and a highly decorative appearance. Their harmonious proportions (28 cm high) make them a natural fit for a mantelpiece, console table, or classic sideboard.
