Set Of Three Rustic Wooden Grain Sieves

Description

This vintage set of three wooden grain sieves showcases hand-crafted bentwood frames and finely woven wire mesh, reflecting traditional rural utility design. Each circular form displays a softly weathered surface with warm honeyed tones and subtle variations in patina, complemented by naturally oxidized metal grids. The visible rope handles and reinforcing wires emphasize their authentic working origins, while the repetition of form creates a visually balanced and sculptural grouping. Originally used for sifting flour and grain, these early 20th-century agricultural tools now function as striking decorative objects, defined by honest materials and restrained geometry. Their organic textures and neutral palette align seamlessly with rustic, wabi-sabi, and minimalist interiors, offering
