Silver Cutlery "Sommerfugl" / "Butterfly" --

Denmark, c. 1900-1930 Pattern : Danish

Sommerfugl (butterfly), English Butterfly. The designer and the first silversmith to produce this pattern have not been established with certainty.

It is today regarded as a rare and highly sought-after Scandinavian Art Nouveau flatware pattern. Design : Denmark, c. 1900/05. Produced primarily during the 1910s-1930s in Copenhagen, with isolated examples into the 1950s. Material :

Silver 830 (SØLV), handcrafted and hand-hammered. Decoration : Hammer-finished handles with a sculpted butterfly in relief at the terminal of each handle -- a characteristic Art Nouveau motif. The combination of organic natural form and refined craftsmanship makes this pattern a remarkable example of

Scandinavian Art Nouveau

(Skonvirke). Hallmarks : Copenhagen city mark (three towers) with year letter, maker's mark and assay mark, "FRIGAST", "SØLV", "830". Maker :

Poul C. Lütken Frigast, Copenhagen. Other known patterns by the firm : Delfin, Rigs, Danish Crown, Princess Fuchsia. Frigast was among the leading Danish silversmiths of the early 20th century, renowned for high-quality silver flatware in the Art Nouveau and Art Déco styles. Pieces :

Complete canteens may include a wide range of items : table forks, knives and spoons, dessert and coffee spoons, mocha spoons, pastry forks ; supplementary pieces such as serving utensils, ladles, sugar tongs, napkin rings, salt cellars and tea strainers make each canteen individual and versatile. Keywords : Sommerfugl bestik ·

· Danish silver flatware Art Nouveau "To dine with silver is to make a choice. Daily. Not for display, but for conviction. The conviction that a shared meal deserves a worthy setting -- whether a grand feast for twenty or a quiet Sunday table for two. Silver is not decoration. It is a statement."
