Painting - Decoration - Antique Dimensions:
Total: 58.5 x 5 cm H: 72 cm - 50.5 x 65 cm The son of a painter, born in Belgium and living in Paris from a young age, Max Moreau pursued an international career that took him from the French Riviera to Morocco, where he associated with Jacques Majorelle, by way of Florida and Spain. He painted numerous portraits of American high society, for which he was highly sought after. This early 20th-century painting depicts a man with a distinctive mustache, captured in a calm and pensive pose. It shows natural signs of wear, indicative of its age. This historical artwork will bring a touch of authenticity and nostalgia to your home, evoking a bygone era. A painting from the "early 20th century" titled "Portrait of an Ancestor" generally refers to an oil on canvas
