Description

In one volume, duodecimo, full tinted calfskin, spine with raised bands decorated with gilt tools, contemporary binding, printed in Brussels, by François Foppens, 1738. "New Spanish Dialogues" & "New Dialogues in Spanish and French," this copy, printed during the youth of Louis XV, is a pedagogical work for becoming familiar with the Spanish language, containing many proverbs, explanations of several ways of speaking specific to the Spanish language; the construction of the universe, the principal terms of the arts and sciences, and a nomenclature at the end. By François Sobrino, Master of the Spanish Language at this Court... An interesting work of communication from the early 18th century. A fine work of study, with minor flaws and quite complete.
