Description

Corkscrew "Le Français" (the Frenchman) - Mid-19th Century Iron and Brass This "Le Français" (the Frenchman) corkscrew, dating from the mid-19th century, is crafted from iron and brass. This beautiful object is distinguished by its robust construction and elegant original patina. Its wrought iron structure ensures solidity and character, while the brass elements add a refined touch. The stamped "Le Français" (the Frenchman) mark enhances its historical significance. Both a functional tool and a decorative object, it will find its perfect place in a charming kitchen, a wine cellar, or an antique collection.
