Description

A refined polychrome porcelain group depicting two cherubs at the foot of a tree, one of whom is winged (Cupid), holding a basket of fruit and symbolic instruments. The scene, rich in detail and movement, represents a Rococo-style allegory of love. The quality of the modeling, the softness of the flesh tones, and the brilliance of the colors testify to the mastery of the Meissen factory, heir to the great 18th-century tradition of Kändler and Acier.
