Description

An exceptional Napoleon III period headboard in richly carved and gilded wood, French work circa 1850-1870, in the Renaissance style. The pediment features a central female mask surmounted by a spectacular radiating decoration of stylized feathers forming a fan, framed by powerful opposing scrolls. The side posts are adorned with floral swags carved in high relief. The whole piece offers a strong and theatrical architectural presence, typical of the Second Empire style. The antique gilding displays a beautiful patina with natural wear consistent with age, enhancing its authenticity. This piece is ready to be installed in a bedroom or incorporated into a high-end decorative scheme.
