Description

Immersed in a misty, hushed atmosphere, Winter Morning in the City captures the quiet poetry of an urban street deserted by the hustle and bustle. Stripped trees stand like sentinels, their black silhouettes silhouetted against the dark facades of the buildings. The artist, P. Duprés, plays with shades of gray and brown to recreate the diffuse light of a cold morning, generating a sense of almost melancholic calm. The dense texture of the oil on canvas and the impressionistic treatment of detail bring to life an urban scene that is both realistic and poetic. The richly ornamented, gilded frame underscores the contrast between the harsh winter of the city and the timeless elegance of the work. A painting that invites the viewer to contemplate the discreet and fragile charm of city life beneath the frost.
