Description

Painting on copper depicting an unidentified saint, Flemish school, 17th century. The front bears a Latin inscription, ending with "Dominus Meu." The phrase "Dominum Meu" means "my Lord" in Latin and refers to the Lord, often understood as Jesus or God. There are no specific saints directly associated with this inscription; however, the phrase may appear in religious contexts or on representations of saints expressing their devotion, such as the Hail Mary.Small flaws but overall good condition.Measures 24 x 19 cm.
