Description

- Oil on panel. Signed and dated. - Chus García Fraile has become an internationally renowned artist. Known for her painting, in which she has developed an impeccable style, she works in a multidisciplinary manner, navigating with ease between photography, drawing, sculpture, video, and installation. She uses art as a language and makes no distinction between techniques or materials, interested only in their communicative potential. Through her art, she recodes the details that, according to her, constitute and represent our reality, what is called the "welfare state." Chus García Fraile constantly questions the everyday conditions of our society: excessive construction and the resulting real estate speculation, the cult of objects, and the tenuous boundary between the private and public spheres. - 50 x 41 cm / 82 x 71
