Description

Magnificent pastel portrait of a little girl from the 19th century, signed lower right Mathilde Curot-Barberel. The child wears a pink bow in her blond hair and holds a gilt medallion in her right hand, which she wears around her neck. The work is in its original gilt frame, made by R. Charpentier in Paris. Dimensions: 44 cm in diameter (sight); 54 cm in diameter (framed). Mathilde Curot-Barberel, born in Paris and active from 1880 to 1905, was a miniaturist and pastel artist. She exhibited from 1880 onwards at the Salon des Artistes Français and at the Exposition Nationale des Beaux-Arts in 1898. She also worked on porcelain. She exhibited in the provinces and abroad and received numerous medals: a silver medal in Boulogne, a silver medal in Tunis, the same at the Aix International
