Description

19th-century drop-front secretary desk crafted from solid walnut with refined maple inlays. The fall-front opens to reveal a practical writing compartment fitted with small drawers and internal pigeonholes, ideal for organizing documents and personal items. The warm walnut grain, finely worked, gives the piece a sober yet sophisticated appearance, suitable for both classic and eclectic interiors. Clean lines and slender legs reflect the Central European taste of the first half of the 19th century. Compact in size yet visually striking, it is perfect for a study, living room, or entrance hall. Period: 19th century Materials: Solid walnut and maple Condition: Good overall condition with age-appropriate wear Type: Drop-front secretary desk / bureau
