France from 1806 to 1813. This duchy, which grouped together numerous historical principalities of the Holy Roman Empire around the Duchy of Berg, was formed to serve as an administrative model for the other states of the Confederation of the Rhine. Murat was invested as Grand Duke of Berg on March 15, 1806, and ruled the duchy until its secession from the Holy Roman Empire on August 1, 1806.
